THE HAWAIIAN RELIEF SOCIETY

FORMED TO RELIEVE THE DISTRESS OF HAWAIIANS IN THE EPIDEMIC.

Wonderful Record of Thirty-two Days' Work Performed by the Ladies.

NEARLY THREE HUNDRED THOUSAND RATIONS SERVED

TO MORE THAN THREE THOUSAND PEOPLE—TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS RAISED, BUT LESS THAN SEVEN THOUSAND SPENT.

There was a meeting of the Hawaiian Relief Society this morning, at which complete financial and other statements were submitted by the officers. From the reports of the treasurer, Mrs. Macfarlane, are presented the interesting statistics that follow. This is deemed a good opportunity for presenting an account and work of the organization together with the subscription list showing how nobly Honolulu responded to a call for relieving distress.

When fishing was prohibited in the harbor and adjacent waters, on account of a conviction the health authorities had formed that infected fish was the chief cause of the cholera epidemic, one of the principal articles of food used by the natives was cut off. It was like the breaking of the staff of life in the land for the Hawaiians. Later the condemnation of taro in infected localities threatened the cutting off of the other chief article of native food, but happily there proved to be enough taro outside of the condemned patches to last until the disease was stamped out. At the same time that the Hawaiians were deprived of their fish, the inter-island steamers were subjected to a quarantine that almost stopped the coasting trade entirely. As this rendered idle a large number of Hawaiians employed on the steamers and in shore work connected with general traffic, there ensued severe distress among a large proportion of the native population of Honolulu. The fact was published in the press and it appeared inevitable that, to the extraordinary expenses of suppressing the epidemic, there would be added to the burden of the treasury the necessity of relieving wide-spread want caused by the visitation.

At this juncture a noble idea took hold of some people, so to speak, with spontaneity, as to two or three at least, that it might be invidious to award the honor to any individual. Certainly, however, Allen Herbert of Honolulu and George H. Fairchild of Kauai, were among the first gentlemen to give voice to the idea. Mr. Herbert spoke to Mrs. Emma M. Nakuina on the subject of starting a relief station by public subscription, for supplying food and clothing to native Hawaiians who were in distress in consequence of the epidemic. Mrs. Nakuina lost no time in communicating with several of her intimate friends. This was on September 5, and so prompt was the response that, on the following day, a meeting of representative Hawaiian ladies was held in Mrs. Nakuina's office, and the Hawaiian Relief Society was organized with the following named officers:

Mrs. S. C. Allen, President;
Mrs. F. S. Pratt, Vice President;
Mrs. F. W. Macfarlane, Treasurer;

Mrs. E. M. Nakuina, Secretary;

Mrs. James Campbell, Mrs. Geo. C. Beckley and Mrs. Haalelea, Directors.

After the society had prosecuted its relief work for a few days, Mrs. Pratt resigned her office on account of illness, when Mrs. Haalelea was elected in her stead, and the Board of Directors was reinforced by the addition of Mrs. J. O. Carter, Mrs. Robert Lewers and Mrs. Graham. These ladies along with Mrs. Neumann had from the first offered their services to the movement.

While the ladies were organizing the gentleman promoters were busy. Mr. Herbert was giving out contracts for converting a vacant restaurant building on Bethel street into a relief station. Mr. Fairchild and Fred. W. Macfarlane were diligently canvassing the city for subscriptions. Within forty-eight hours six or eight thousand dollars were subscribed, and the subscriptions continued coming in, some from the other islands, until what realized more than ten thousand dollars had been enrolled. The list in full is here given.

The number of men, women and children helped by the society during the epidemic of cholera, commencing on the 7th of September and ending on the 12th of October, a period of thirty-two days, was as follows: For eight days ending Sept. 14th, 18,076; six days ending Sept. 21st, 22,318; six days ending Sept. 28th, 22,414 Oct. 5th, 21,945; six days ending Oct. 12, 21,244. Total, 105,997, or a daily average for thirty-two days of 3312 men, women and children.

Everything was nearly in readiness at the relief station on the morning of Saturday, the 7th of September, and the work of serving out food to the hungry began on that day. Mrs. Arnold was made superintendent of the station. At a second meeting of the society, in the afternoon of the 6th, an amusing incident occurred. It was held at the Chamber of Commerce, and a number of the members of that body surprised the ladies by putting in an appearance. They had through a misunderstanding come to confer with the ladies on the methods of relief to be pursued. Their good offices were pleasantly dispensed with.

When the ladies first took up the work, it was intended that they should furnish meals at the station. This gave rise to the nickname it received of the "house." The very first day this plan was decided to be impracticable, and Sunday was the last day that meals were served at the station. Instead of giving meals there, the ladies served rations at the window until a district service could be properly organized. In the defining of district bounds J. O. Carter and E. C. Macfarlane gave able assistance. Mr. Macfarlane gave four days at the work. For certain reasons the inspection districts of the Citizens' Committee were not altogether convenient, therefore a new schedule of districts had to be arranged.

From Saturday until Tuesday the rations were distributed at the window. On Wednesday a sub-station was started at Waikiki, and on Thursday rations were supplied at that place, at Moiliili, Kalia and the O. R. & L. Co.'s depot. By the Friday following fifteen sub-stations were in operation. For thirty-two days the distribution was maintained. There was none on Sundays, but a double portion on Saturdays, after the first week. Delivery wagons were dispatched daily, supplying the stations, into Manoa valley, Nuuanu valley to Wyllie street, Kalihi valley to Mrs. Nakuina's Paoa valley, and to Waialae, Koko Head and Niuli.

C. E. Williams & Son, the Union Feed Company and William Larsen each gave the services of a delivery wagon free. The ladies of the society worked hard at the station daily from eight o'clock until noon, weighing and parceling out the rations, while Mrs. Arnold supervised the cooking. Waikiki and Kalihi were the only places where the food was delivered uncooked. Mrs. T. S. Douglas and Mrs. Pope, respectively, attending to that service at those sub-stations. For other places everything was prepared at headquarters.

From the subjoined table of rations supplied the magnitude of the work may be somewhat realized. A computation will show that more than thirty-three hundred separate persons were relieved from first to last. Sanitary inspectors were given tickets for rations to be furnished at their discretion to destitute Hawaiians.

Many contributions of clothing were placed at the disposal of the ladies, who distributed the articles where they were needed. There were some cases of imposition in obtaining relief, but not many.

Several grocers contributed provisions free, and Mr. Nolte of the Beaver restaurant is held in gratitude for fine ham supplied to headquarters, which was just right for the hard working ladies' lunches. Sam. C. Dwight gave a large lot of wood, and Hustace & Co. also contributed to the fuel. Many offers of help were given which could not be considered simply because the ladies were too busy.

When the account closed for October, the society were still helping some Hawaiians. They have sent one family to Lahaina and another to Kauai—people who were detained here by the quarantine. They are still feeding four distressed families. It is decided that the society will effect permanent organization. There are some children, sufferers from the epidemic, who will need care. Three are orphans who lost both parents by the cholera.

It was not without deep gratitude that the distressed Hawaiians received the benefactions of the society. Addresses of thanks have been received by the ladies from two divisions of Manoa, from Huenia up Nuuanu valley and from Kakaako.
